Dry Casting Report, 3 November 2002.

What a great start to a day. A slight headwind, a soft dew and the sun coming up into a beautiful blue sky. Getting assistance by one ugly so-and-so who carted out all of the gear and scared off all of the exercising dogs, we had the area set up and sat down to enjoy the coffee as the casters arrived.

There were quite a few snap offs and out of bounds by all groups during the distance casting but brute strength by Chas and absolutely class by Roy gave them the honours for the 112 gram and 56 gram events. I also speak for others when I comment on the big improvement young Ben Lilburne and "Aubs" are making, for they are creeping closer to the top lads.

Once again "Roy the boy" produced excellence to outclass all in the double handed event, although the bulls eyes by Chas and Aubs had them strutting their stuff. "Teletubby 2" and "Shorty" won the single handed event but the clangers by Rick and Trevor put a smile on their dial. Trevor's leap into the air had his boots just leave the grass.

The overall winner of the day goes to "Roy the boy" on top of his win in the State titles and goes to show that really "old" people can still do a few things properly, given plenty of time. Roy's regular practice along with his polished style will surely give him even more rewards in the future. Well done "kiddo".

Congratulations to Chas for pipping George and winning the single handed event. Chas' competitiveness will also lead into success but it's his willingness to assist others that really make him stand out. I have added his name to my list of fellow club members that are truly "club men".

The State dry casting event has been and gone and I congratulate all fellow club members on their efforts both in the teams events and individual performances. Success came our way in many areas but it was the comradery and assistance by many that made a great day. "Well done" to all.

This decrepit body of mine has been letting me down lately and I haven't been producing the usual high standards (any disagreeing comments?) so I'd like to say thank you to my mates for their cooperation and assistance and slight concern.

Keep it straight and long.

Hendo.

P.S. it only takes a tiny bit of your time to assist others, just take a gander at George's and both Terry's and Trevor's efforts every casting day. Have a go, you may enjoy yourself.

From Reel Talk July 1953.

Many thanks to past members Ted Horsley and Vern Pocklington for donating copies of early Reel Talks from 1952 to 1954, and a copy of the Constitution of the Surfcasting and Angling Association of WA from that time. This gives us some wonderful views of the early days of the club, and will fill many pages of future Reel Talks. Here's the July 1953 issue of Reel Talk, when the Club was the Surf Casting and Angling Association of WA.

Who was the chap who hid two Graeme reels under the house, later to explain that he bought his wife a reel also and was keeping it as a surprise?

A Letter from "Old Timer" (July 1953)

Dear Bill,

Remember me tellin' you about the 16 3/4 lb. jewy I caught on a herrin' 'ook a cupla weeks ago at Point Peron? Well, I goes down again last weekend and just to prove it weren't t no fluke I gets another one in the same place. This 'ere's only a 12 pounder, and this time I was usin' a bigger 'ook, a 2/0 suicide and a whole prawn, but it's worth mentionin'.

If anyone don't believe me they can ask me wife - she 'anded me the gaff !

Be seein' you Bill "Old Timer"

P.S. You might like to take a gink at these 'ooks. (But I wants 'em back again for me George Washington fish gallery.) O.T.

Reality Bites? (July 1953)

There's a crew of tired men who will never smile again,
There's a pile of broken tackle on the shore,
There are beaten up surfmasters, broken rods and weary casters,
Who have sworn that they'd go fishing nevermore.

In the cold grey light of dawning, bed and all home comforts scorning,
They had started with elation on the track,
For they said when we go fishing, well it's not like idle wishing,
Why if we don't catch a pile we won't come back.

So they left their bridges burning, bed and all home comforts spurning,
Heading out at speeds alarming for their spot,
For they said if we don't get there before all the boys have met there
They will get a start and catch the ruddy lot.

Well they landed out there early and unloaded all their burley,
And they headed with their gear for the beach,
As they limbered up their tackle you could hear those experts cackle
As they thought of all those fish within their reach.

When they raced down to the water getting ready for the slaughter
A thunderous crashing sound beset their ears
When they set eyes on those rollers they shed tears, and beat their molars
And their brows grew black with strife and sudden fear.

Well to cut this story shorter the weather was a snorter,
And those poor bedraggled blighters caught no fish,
And they thought of all their bragging and their footsteps started dragging
And a sure and painless death their only wish.

They headed home next morning cold and bleary eyed and yawning,
And each wondered how the hell he'd face his wife,
For it's seldom cheese and kisses when you go home to the missus
Without that fish meal on which you "bet your life".

Some tried walking in quite boldly but their wives just eyed them coldly
And murmured in their sweetest voice: "What ho!"
Why you poor deluded sucker, if you've brought home no fish tucker,
Back fishing with your mates you'll never go.

For an attitude superior when you've got a wet posterior
And no fish to show is just a ruddy cheek,
Well there's some still in disfavour but there's some whose case is graver,
And we fear that they will end up in the creek.

There's a crew of tired men who will never smile again,
There's a pile of broken tackle on the shore,
There are some wives still, sharpening their knives,
And there's some who will fish with us no more.

Fishing Along the South Coast (July 1953).

East of Albany is a long stretch of coast that has received relatively little attention from the amateur fisherman. The roads leading to this area are passable to almost any vehicle that will track and has good clearance.

This coast consists of alternating granite bluffs and cliffs which form headlands to protect large bays which have miles of surf beaches. A number of small rivers enter the sea through estuaries which are closed by sand bars during the summer months.

The rod fisherman is in his element here. The beaches will provide him with salmon, by the thousand, in season, herring, skipjack, flathead and the usual assortment of sharks, rays etc. Fishing from the rocks he can add groper, queen fish, sergeant baker, sweep, occasional schnapper and garfish to his haul. The estuaries provide bream, King George whiting, pilchard and mullet.

Cape Riche is typical of this area. The Cape itself consists of granite cliffs from 100ft. to 200 ft. in height, these reach out to form an arm which on the north side encloses a large bay and on the south side is open to the Southern Ocean. A small estuary empties into the bay.

The ocean side of the cape has some small sandy beaches where the surf caster will be kept happy. On the rocks at the foot of the cliffs he can fish in water fathoms deep and his main trouble is to land the large fish which he hooks.

When a southerly makes the ocean side of the cape unapproachable, the more sheltered side of the cape provides plenty of fish. The estuary also yields some entertainment as a small school of salmon were trapped in it last year and they often take the bream lines.

As far as facilities go, Cape Riche is 70 miles east of Albany and 105 miles south east of Katanning. There is a farm house and a couple of camps on the estuary. Telephone communications exist with the outside world. A landing strip is available for an Albany doctor, and is used by a spotting plane for the commercial fishermen.

This, except for the habitation, is similar to most fishing spots on the South Coast from Albany to Hopetoun. Not only is the fishing good, but the grandeur of this coastline must be seen to be believed. The spectacle of heavy seas crashing against the cliffs makes the trip worthwhile because there is always a spot. where you can fish.

One That Didn't Get Away - and One that Did. (July 1953)

Over the edge of the reef a few yards in front he appeared for a few brief moments and disappeared back into the depths, but he had set one heart beating a little faster and one mouth watering. He was as blue as the sky had been the day before and looked like at least half a hundredweight of real fish.

There and then I decided I must have him so after a hurried look at "The Book", I scampered off after rock crabs, First I threw legs and small bits of crab into the water where he had disappeared and I soon saw him again. This time he was bigger and bluer and even more to be desired, so I attached a crab to a 10/0 hook and threw it in on the end of some 47 lb. nylon. I kept throwing bits of crab in until they ran out, when I went for more. This went on from midday until darkness beat me, and I returned to camp to seek the advice of the 'experts'.

I got very little, none that was helpful. You can waste more time than enough on those groper. "You're sure it wasn't a big buff?". Surely I hadn't spent half a day chasing a "buff!"

Next morning, with a mate and a plan worked out, I returned to the same spot and set to work. First I was to catch a dozen herring for the night's bait, then I'd collect crabs and chase my groper again. The herring were easily caught.

So I hooked the 12th on my heavy line and returned him for a little swim whilst I went to collect crabs. Crabs were hard to catch; it was raining and my mate had shot through to get warm and dry in camp. After about 10 minutes I caught one crab, Then I heard my reel start to scream, I dropped the gaff and knife in the rush to get back before the whole lot went to sea and after falling into the "drink", I managed to grab the rod as the last few feet of line were about to leave. I was too late, Slowly I reeled two hundred yards of line in and cursed myself for not having used a wire trace.

As I still had a rod, reel, line and one little crab, I wasn't giving up so I tied another 10/0 hook to the line, attached my crab and threw in. Suddenly the rod bent double and broke at the ferrule. Then I was in real trouble. No rod, no gaff, no knives no mate within half a mile and big groper in rough water where I couldn't get to him, even if I got him in.

Forgetting any ethics I may have known of sport, I grabbed the line and hauled. Everything held except the fish which appeared suddenly below me in a big wave. As he went back with the wave I thought "Well, so long, it's been good seeing you." Next wave I brought him in again and hung tight while the wave receded. Still I couldn't get down to him so I thought I'd hang on for as long as I could.

Eventually I worked him along the rocks until I managed to get him wedged into a crevice while I worked my way along the line until I retrieved the gaff. By this time both of us had about 'had it'. I got back with the gaff and the game was up for one groper.

After all my efforts there wasn't even a shag (it was too wet) to witness my triumph but I got back to camp with the fish. If you don't believe me, I've got at least 45 witnesses and a picture. The scales weren't too kind to me as they only put it down as 36 lbs.

Yokine Reserve Plans.

The Stirling City Council has draft plans for some significant changes to Yokine Reserve, including the area where the Club holds its monthly Dry Casting.

The changes proposed for this area are the least for any part of the Reserve, and are:-

1. A foot path west - east down the middle in line with the northern end of the building where we have the sausage sizzles, with "tree plantings to provide spectator access, shade and landscape amenity." The trees proposed along here are "deciduous exotic trees"
2. Along the northern boundary (Wordsworth Avenue) - changes within the area already having trees, but no significant loss of grassed area. Extra trees, paths, etc
3. Along the eastern boundary (Alexander Drive) – an increase in the width of the treed area, by plantings of "informal groups of signature Norfolk Island Pines around the main sports ground", replacement of some of the existing trees, and extra paths. This could reduce the length of the grassed area available for distance casting, but it appears still to be about 300 metres long (needs a check – the scales on the drawing have some errors.)
4. Along the southern boundary – pathways and tree plantings but no great loss of grassed area.
5. Along the western boundary (existing car park) - no changes affecting the area we use.

The positives for this area in the plan are:-

1. The club is listed as a user of this area in both summer and winter, along with Hockey and Softball clubs.
2. The area has a note "The retention of broad landscape open space qualities important."
3. The area is marked "Retain sports ground's open flexible layout.", "preservation of open space qualities" and "avoid loss of park land to single group usage, buildings, sports synthetic surfaces or enclosures."

There will be a public meeting to discuss the proposed plan at the Yokine Bowling Club on Monday 9 December at 6:00 pm. Users of other areas, for example the model aircraft group, are affected a lot by the proposals for the areas they use.

Push for New Markets for Herring and Salmon.

The following Media Statement, 12/11/02 from Hon. Kim Chance MLC, Minister for Fisheries, has been referred to Recfishwest for clarification on how this fits in with efforts to reduce the commercial catch of salmon and herring which are important recreational species. If this is to get more $$$ return for a smaller catch - great. But if it just adds to the amount caught – that affects the fishing on both the South and West Coast and that's not good !!!

A new project to help expand the south coast fishing industry has been announced by Fisheries Minister Kim Chance.

The project will investigate ways to increase the value and number of purchasers of Australian salmon and herring caught along the south coast, as well as co-ordinating marketing efforts for the products.

The South Coast Licensed Fishermen's Association (SCLFA) and Albany's fish processors have formed an industry council, which will drive the project with the support of the Great Southern Development Commission.

"The industry has already done substantial work to improve both the image and nature of the herring and salmon product and the Government is pleased to support the marketing effort," Mr Chance said.

"It is important to capitalise on the clean and green qualities offered by this fishery and create a demand for this untapped product."

The Minister said the Great Southern fishing industry had suffered in recent years through viral destruction of the pilchard resource with the loss of several processors and fishermen.

"The industry on the south coast has also traditionally relied upon single markets whereas this project will seek to generate new markets and new products to secure jobs for the region," he said.

Mr Chance said the project had secured the services of Andrew Campbell, an experienced marketing director, who successfully established a world-wide distribution network for the Nile Perch fish.

"Mr Campbell will focus on establishing business relationships with potential overseas buyers to create a demand for value-added salmon and herring products," the Minister said. "He will also work with the local industry to identify the best opportunities."

The Great Southern Development Commission's Regional Development Scheme and the WA Fishing Industry Council's Development and Better Interest Fund are contributing $30,000 each to the project. Further in-kind support will come from industry. Minister's office: 9213 6700

WA RSPCA and Angling.

An RSPCA "deep throat" rang an AAA person with a worrying message and giving some Internet references about RSPCA proposals for angling. Following up on some of the references that actually existed, it seems that the WA RSPCA have commented on the proposed changes to the WA "Animal Welfare Act 2001". This had a second reading in the WA Legislative Council on 7 November 2002 and was passed a week or so later.

The WA RSPCA web page <http://www.rspcawa.asn.au/Information/legislation.htm> says about the proposed Animal Welfare Act 2001:-

"It was believed that professional and recreational fishing and fish farming could be excluded from the provisions of the Bill. It was expected that captive fish (companion fish and aquariums) would be covered.

The Bill omits fish from the definition of an animal and thereby precludes an Inspector from dealing with any fish, but then directly appoints the staff of Fisheries Western Australia as Inspectors and extends their inspectoral powers under the Bill to include fish. Thus Fisheries Officers will cover all species, including fish, while other Inspectors will cover all species, except fish. All offences by domestic fish owners and aquarium owners may only be dealt with by Fisheries Officers.

RSPCA advocates a sensible approach to fish by including them in the definition of an animal, but prescribing fish in commercial fishing activities and fish farming as being animals outside the powers of an Inspector unless the Inspector is appointed to deal with those animals.

RSPCA advocates the appointment of Fisheries Officers as Inspectors under Clause 33, but with powers limited to dealing with fish as prescribed animals."

RSPCA Australia Policy on Angling. From <http://www.rspca.org.au/policies/c.pdf> page 98, section 1.11:-

"RSPCA Australia does not oppose fishing where it is conducted in the natural habitat in the proper manner and where a free running fish has a chance to escape. Fish caught should be landed quickly and must be stunned or pithed immediately". ("Pith" means:- "to kill by piercing or severing the spinal cord").

The proposed "Animal Welfare Act 2001" says:-

96. Fish Resources Management Act 1994 (to be) amended

(1) The amendments in this section are to the Fish Resources Management Act 1994.

(2) After section 191 the following section is (to be) inserted:-

191A. Additional powers of fisheries officers in relation to cruelty

A fisheries officer may, for the purpose of enforcing regulations made under section 258(va) or (vb), exercise the powers conferred by the Animal Welfare Act 2001 on general inspectors under that Act as if

(a) the fisheries officer was such an inspector;

(b) fish were animals for all purposes under that Act; and

(c) an offence under those regulations was an offence under Part 3 of that Act.

(3) After section 258(v) the following paragraphs are (to be) inserted

(va) prescribe measures to

(i) prevent cruelty to fish; and

(ii) provide for the welfare, safety and health of fish;

(vb) provide for the adoption of codes of practice relating to the use, care, welfare, safety or health of fish either

(i) as modified by the regulations;

(ii) as they exist at a particular date; or

(iii) as they are amended from time to time

Part 3 of the Animal Welfare Act 2001 says:-

Part 3 - Offences against animals

19. Cruelty to animals

(1) A person must not be cruel to an animal. Penalty: Minimum - $2,000. Maximum - $50,000 and imprisonment for 5 years.

(2) Without limiting subsection (1) a person, whether or not the person is a person in charge of the animal, is cruel to an animal if the person -

(a) tortures, mutilates, maliciously beats or wounds, abuses, torments, or otherwise ill-treats, the animal;

(b) uses a prescribed inhumane device on the animal;

(c) intentionally or recklessly poisons the animal;

(d) does any prescribed act to, or in relation to, the animal; or

(e) in any other way causes the animal unnecessary harm.

22. Defence - authorised by law

It is a defence to a charge under section 19(1) for a person to prove that the person -

(a) was authorised by or under a written law to do the act that is alleged to constitute the offence; and

(b) did the act in a humane manner.

So now you know !.

State Dry Casting Championships 2002/3

The State dry casting championships were held at Yokine Reserve on Sunday 27 October and the downward trend in attendance continued with 56 casters present. To try and pinpoint the reason is hard as it is possibly the most social of four state championships, because everybody is together for a whole day and this leads to great comradery. It's an event anyone can compete in and achieve, even if it is only to better your own score.

You don't have to have specialised gear to win, as was the case with the winning men's team who in the main were using standard beach fishing gear. Another example was the longest cast by a junior of 157 metres by Ben Lilburne and was with the standard beach rod. A great cast!

As has been mentioned at a number of Delegates' Council meetings a lot of the casters had rods, both beach and special casting rods available for others to use. Also the Surfcasters have an open invitation to any AAA of WA club members to come to their club cast on the first Sunday of each month and they will teach you how to use any fishing gear.

There was also a sausage sizzle available all day to feed those with that hungry look in the eye and also soft drinks. What more could you ask for? There was also a small raffle. These were provided by Bob Henderson and his co-workers and special thanks for their endeavors. All present appreciated their work

Now for the event. The weather was unusual, .. overcast with the wind coming across the ground from left to right varying from still to light to quite gusty, and later in the day came from behind and was reasonably strong. Casting had to be stopped at the end of the first event because of the amount of lightning which for a time could have been dangerous.

Once again the quality of the casting was of a high standard and we were pleased to welcome Ian Pereira from New South Wales and a newcomer in John Barnes who originates from South Africa. They both stretched a bit of line and we hope enjoyed themselves.

The first event was double handed accuracy and in the open the maestro Gary Gildersleeves led the way with 140 out of a possible 200. Janet Hughes was best in the ladies with 102. The veterans saw Huey score 144 points, the junior Ben Lilburne 80 and mini juniors Andrew Stoeckel finished on top.

The second event was 56 gram V-court distance and Joe Pullella led the way with 145.51 metres; ladies Filomena D'Alonzo 104 metres; veterans Bob Henderson 136 metres; juniors Daniel Bell 112.1 metres and in the minis Andrew Stoeckel cast 61.7 metres.

Longest cast out of both individual and teams artificial bait went to Joe Pullella with 150.58 metres; ladies Filomena D'Alonzo 98.5 metres; veterans Hew 132.97 metres; juniors Ben Lilburne 117.2 metres and in the minis Andrew Stoeckel 52.4 metres

Then came the 112 gram distance V-court and some personal bests were achieved by a number of competitors. Longest cast for the day was by Joe Pullella with 185.01 metres. In the ladies Filomena D'Alonzo cast 109.8 metres; veterans Hew cast 157.73 metres; juniors saw a near State record cast off 157 metres (State record is 159 metres) by Ben Lilburne with a fishing rod and Andrew Stoeckel cast 60.6 metres in the minis.

Congratulations must go to the winners of the day and most of the results were closely contested which created a lot of interest throughout the day.

In the team events, results were as follows

The longest cast of the day went to Joe Pullella with 185.01 metres.

The Patrons Cup was won by the Surfcasters

At this point I wish to make a few "thank you"s.

To Magic Nissan for once again providing individual trophies, special thanks as their association goes back good number of years.

To Urban Angler (three stores Osborne Park, North Perth and Victoria Park) thanks for providing the team awards.

We hope casters will remember our sponsors went looking to buy a vehicle or fishing and camping gear.

Paul Frzop did a great job with his computer and had the results out quickly and efficiently. Terry Bell put his head in the door also. Your efforts were appreciated by all, guys, and made my job easier.

To Bob Henderson and all the of helpers with putting down the lanes, helping on the day with the scoring and the sausage sizzle and raffle - many thanks.

Finally to all those who attended and made the day the success it was, thank you. I look forward to seeing many more competitors and clubs present next year and remember help is available, all you have to do is ask!

To all those going to Yamba in 2003 - best of luck and good casting.

AAA 2002 State Estuary Championships.

The AAA 2002 State Estuary Championships were held in the Swan and Canning Rivers on Saturday/Sunday 23/24 November 2002. Boundaries were all areas open to the public upstream from the Fremantle traffic bridge.

Spencer King and his 9 kg Mulloway.

The Surfcasters had some success with Spencer King weighing in two beautiful bronzed mulloway of 9 kg and 8 kg, both gilled and gutted. Spencer told me where these were caught, in confidence, but I know he won't mind if I pass his secret on to his friends in the Surfcasters, so they can all go and get into a bit of the mulloway action. The area is mentioned somewhere in this Reel Talk, but you'll have to search for it. Look in the list of contents for a clue.

The "Estuary Master" Don Batchelor with his 6.85kg, 8 species, 29 fish and 136.4 points, beat the "Beach and Rock Master" Tony D'Alonzo with his 3.23kg, 4 species, 13 fish and 65.9 points. And their combined score of 202.3 points scored a win in the

Don Batchelor and his winning Yellowfin Whiting.

Veteran's Team competition. Second was Melville Amateur Angling Club (1) with 167.9 points.

Don won the Individual Veterans Division, and actually got more points than the Men's Division winner Paul Willis from Offshore Angling Club Beach with 5.45 kg, 8 species, 27 fish, and 128.8 points. He also won the heaviest whiting prize. Well done, Don!

Team Events were won by Mens:- Melville Amateur Angling Club (1), Veterans:- Surfcasting & Angling Club, Ladies:- Bunbury Angling Club, Juniors :- Whitfords Sea Sports Club, Mini Juniors :- Whitfords Sea Sports Club.

President's Notes.

The last few months have been a little thin on the ground as regards the Presidents notes. No excuses but just a fact of little to say and a lot of time to say it.

Last month we had an extremely interesting and informative talk by Frank Prokop who gave us different insight on the benefits of our sport. Those old lures that we had thrown away because the paint had faded or the hooks had gone rusty, and there must be thousands of them, may have had some value. One man's "poison" is another's "treasure".

I was a little inspired by Frank's obvious passion for lure fishing so at the State Estuary competition I made a conscious decision to forget the bait and stick to lures. Tried every thing to no avail. Halco minnow, Halco slice, small jig, big jig, nothing. Mind you, I did go back to bait for the same result, and before granddad Bob gets in, Yes Julie out fished me again!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!!

It was brought to notice at the last committee meeting that even in SCAC too few do too much. We have a number of people who seem to take on multiple jobs, not just because they are good people but also because they have a commitment to see that things are done. Unfortunately too few stand up and offer their services although most will subscribe to the adage that "many hands make light work" when asked.

Too often we allow the person who is often the busiest to take more work than is acceptable. For instance take the treasury. Terry has streamlined the systems that have been developed for this office to an extent that a few hours a month would suffice to keep our records on good order, a fact that has been relayed at meetings on many occasions. And yet no one has offered their services, preferring to leave it up to others. One day there will be no others.

So What Are These Fishing Clubs About Anyway?

My partner and I are keen fishos. There is nothing to compare with having your toes in the sand on a beach somewhere (hopefully with not too many other people around) waiting for that tug on the line that signifies the presence of a fish. The interest in fishing for us has been rekindled over the last 5 years or so and grows the more we learn. Up until a few months ago we fished mainly by ourselves, gaining experience through the observation of others and by personal experience. The learning curve was gentle and some what frustrating at times, but that's the way of things when you are on your own.

One of the other means of increasing your learning is through the internet. Sites such as Fishing WA and Western Angler are a treasure trove of information on all aspects of fishing from rods and reels to where and how to fish. Information is one thing doing is another and we were still looking for a way to experience more in the way of places to visit and techniques to try. We'd seen the clubs section on the web a few time before and thought that maybe one day we would give them a try. Well eventually we got around to contacting the Surfcasting and Angling Club and were invited attend their next meeting.

They say that you generally make up your mind in the first couple of minutes of any new encounter, our first impressions of this club was very positive. After making ourselves known, we were introduced to a number of the members and made to feel most welcome. As we soon learned, the club has been around for over 50 years so there is an obvious sense of history and a great depth of knowledge. The club's activities range from fishing competitions, dry casting and social gatherings.

Fishing competitions are in the form of field days held once a month which are at different locations throughout the year. The benefits from attending these field days are that you fish places that you may not have fished if by yourself. Also because the field days are on a specific day of the month the weather may or may not be in your favour, forcing you to adapt your fishing techniques to suit the conditions. Heading off to new locations can also be a little daunting if you do not have knowledge of what to expect when you get there. Traveling in the company of others who know the area is far more rewarding.

Dry casting sounded a bit strange when we first heard of it. Why would you want to cast sinkers around in a park, kilometers away from the ocean? The answer to that is that this is where a vast improvement in your casting skill will take place, especially in the early stages. The members will gladly show you techniques in rod handling that will improve your distance and accuracy within a very short time. After all if you are able to place a bait or lure in exactly the spot that you think may hold fish, the odds are that you will be more successful in catching those fish. There is another level to dry casting; it's a very competitive state and national sport. State championships are held every year and national championships every 2 years.

Social activities are part of the field days, as different locations are fished throughout the year, camping as a group is the general format. If the weather is foul or the fish not biting it is a good opportunity to get together and access some of the vast amount of experience that the more established members have to offer.

Another side of club membership is that you become part of a collective voice when lobbying government agencies in regard to issues that affect recreational fishers. If your voice is not heard when strategies are being formulated, you may not get another chance. At present there seems to be an awful lot of changes on the table to the way in which the fish resource is to be managed in the future.

So in conclusion has joining a club been beneficial, a definite yes. We have fished more places, learnt new techniques and honed up old ones in the last nine months than we have in the last five years. Give a club a go, I would be surprised if you are disappointed, but remember as with most things, you will get more out the more you put in.

Malcolm Harris.

November Field Day Lancelin to Cervantes.

Try the steak burger was the recommendation, which when taken up proved to be the start of a very agreeable weekend. We had arrived at the Shell service station (now BP) for the sign on. With the split location of Lancelin to Wedge Island and Cervantes/Hill River quickly and amicably sorted out at the General Meeting, the field day was off to a promising start. One party was to fish around Wedge Island and the remainder to concentrate on Hill River with a combined weigh in at George Holman's place on the Sunday afternoon.

Vix and I opted for Hill River, which was a first for us so George very kindly showed the Romano family and us a few of the spots on the way up to the mouth of Hill River. A comment from George that there may be some underground seepage from the closed off river into the sea was enough reason for us to try our luck at the mouth.

The sea breeze was well and truly established by the time we had selected our camp site and got ourselves onto the beach. Doubts about the sanity of having to stand at a 15 degree angle into the wind in order to remain stable were soon set aside by some immediate action. Second cast from me received a good strike but no hook up however the third cast from Vix resulted in a nice tailor of about 1kg. Well with this kind of start we will have our bag in no time.

Wrong, the next fish took two and a half hours to show up, but when he did he brought quite few of his mates along as well. It was a frenzied session for a while, I bagged out with eight good tailor but unfortunately Vix had five in the bag when she encountered a wandering steam train that tried it's best to pull her arms off. By the time the eagle ray was beached and released the tailor had moved on. The wind died off towards evening along with the fishing action, but none the less it was a very pleasant way to spend a Saturday night.

In the morning, herring were in plague proportions along with a smattering of whiting and Tarwhine. Time to pack up and head off came too quickly, so it was back to the service station for a fortifying bacon and egg sandwich and a catch up with the others.

We seemed to have fared better in numbers than most, although there was a good flounder from Andrew Stoeckel and what turned out to be the heaviest tailor from Ric Parker. Tony was not present at the gathering, he had moved off to one of his other locations during the night and we could only guess what he may have in his bag.

We all gathered at the back of George's place for a very social weigh in. It was particularly successful in that it gave an opportunity for the people who had fished locally to attend as well as a couple of visitors. No surprise to see the variety and quantity of fish that Tony weighed in, with a mulloway to cap it off. Terry Willison shot up the ranking with his presentation of a healthy mixed bag, although he did have to endure the slings and arrows of his very jealous compatriots.

All in all a most enjoyable field trip, Cervantes is far enough to be well away from the madding crowd, but still within an easy drive of the metro area. Throw in a relatively straightforward 4 wheel drive component and you have memorable weekend.

See you all on the beach next time. Malcolm Harris, Field Day Officer.
